

For a second year, MYTILINEOS joined the sustainable development investment index FTSE4Good

Corporate Social Responsibility and Sustainable Development Initiatives

Athens, Greece – August 24, 2020 – MYTILINEOS, following an independent assessment by the FTSE International Organisation in June 2020, remains for a second consecutive year a constituent of the Financial Times Stock Exchange 4 Good (FTSE4Good) Emerging Index. This official index aims at promoting the listed companies' investments, that will significantly contribute to society, to the environment and to governance.

Based on the assessment results, MYTILINEOS with an overall ESG performance of 4,1 (2019:3,9) with 5 being the top rank, managed to score more than the scoring of the 92% of the evaluated companies in the business sector of industrial products and services. This index includes more than 540 enterprises from 24 developing markets.

MYTILINEOS' presence in an increasing number of sustainable development international indices (<https://www.mytilineos.gr/en-us/participation-in-socially-responsible-investment/details>) constitutes a recognition both of the company's important initiatives in the Corporate Social Responsibility and of the commitment by its management to safeguarding the Sustainable Development principles in its business operation.

The FTSE4Good Index Series is designed and elaborated by FTSE Russell to identify companies that demonstrate strong Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) practices measured against globally recognized standards).
